"Synopsis The highly successful Clarissa and the Countryman linked farming, field sports and conservation. Clarissa and Johnny's new book develops this theme further to the interdependency between rural communities and urban employment. The indomitable duo will be looking at all sorts of country businesses and cottage industries: saddlery, gun-smithing, boot-making, wicker and tweed; and at environmental schemes such as woodland regeneration and predator control. Clarissa and Johnny will also take to the saddle as they embrace an even wider swathe of rural pursuits. Über den Autor und weitere Mitwirkende Clarissa Dickson Wright is the proprietor of the Cooks Bookshop in Edinburgh and is an ardent countrywoman. Sir John Scott, Bart, is a farmer in the Borders. He writes a countryside column for Scotland on Sunday."
